

PHILOSOPHIA CHRISTI

EDITOR'S INTRODUCTION	CRAIG J. HAZEN	3
ARTICLES
The Cosmological Argument and the Epistemic Status of Belief in God	STEPHEN T. DAVIS	5
Not Even False? Reassessing the Demise of British Natural Theology	WILLIAM A. DEMBSKI	17
"Men Moved by the Holy Spirit Spoke from God" (2 Peter 1.21): A Middle Knowledge Perspective on Biblical Inspiration	WILLIAM LANE CRAIG	45
Ontological Arguments, Metaphysical Identity, and the Trinity	KEITH YANDELL	83
PHILOSOPHICAL NOTES
Humanness as the Mirror of God	WILLIAM HASKER	105
Madell's Rejection of a Substantial, Immaterial Self	J. P. MORELAND	111
Thomas Nagel's "Last Word" on the Metaphysics of Rationality and Morality	DOUGLAS GROOTHUIS	115
BOOK REVIEWS
Harold Coward, ed., Life after Death in World Religions	GARY R. HABERMAS	123
Steven Nadler, Arnauld and the Cartesian Philosophy of Ideas	GREGG TEN ELSHOF	125
Ronald McCamy, Out of a Kantian Chrysalis?	WINFRIED CORDUAN	127
Stephen E. Parrish, God and Necessity: A Defense of Classical Theism	GARY R. HABERMAS	130
Jaegwon Kim, Philosophy of Mind	J.P. MORELAND	133
Gavin D'Costa, ed., Resurrection Reconsidered	GARY R. HABERMAS	137
Roger Scruton, An Intelligent Person's Guide to Philosophy	DOUGLAS GROOTHUIS	140
C.A.J. Coady, Testimony: A Philosophical Study	JAMES BEILBY	143
NEWS AND ANNOUNCEMENTS		147

PHILOSOPHIA CHRISTI, SERIES 2

An Introduction From the New Editor

It is with great pleasure that the leadership of the Evangelical Philosophical Society presents this new series of the journal Philosophia Christi beginning afresh at Volume 1, Number 1 with this issue.

As you no doubt have already noticed, Series 2 has been revitalized in design and layout. I am confident that those of you nostalgic for the old photocopied and stapled version, will quickly grow accustomed to the new look. But we hope you also discover with this issue and those to come, that the level of philosophical discourse has been revitalized as well. Our commitment is to attract and to publish the very best articles, essays, and book reviews that take seriously the intersection of philosophy and Christian faith.

In the spirit of that commitment to excellence, we invite you to submit your best work for future issues. We plan to move to a quarterly publishing schedule from our current semi-annual schedule as soon as the increased flow of quality articles and reviews makes this possible. Please consult the "Guidelines for Contributors" located on the inside back cover for details about submissions. Contributors need not be members of the society and contributions do not need to be favorable to a Christian faith commitment. Indeed, we value articles of high academic quality that might commend or challenge traditional Christian positions.

Authors are invited to submit regular articles and book reviews, but with this issue we also would like to invite contributions of special essays and responses that we are calling "Philosophical Notes." We envision these "notes" as shorter pieces that are more reflective and/or responsive than normal research articles, yet longer and more substantial than most book reviews. Please see the "Philosophical Notes" section of this issue for three fine examples.

At this point, a special word of gratitude is in order for Dr. Stephen M. Clinton of the Orlando Institute in Florida. Dr. Clinton has faithfully kept this journal alive for many years as editor of Philosophia Christi and of its previous incarnation, the Bulletin of the Evangelical Philosophical Society. What Dr. Clinton was able to do with a less than shoe-string budget in consistently issuing this journal year after year might very well be the subject of a future article in these pages on the reality of miracles. We are truly grateful to God for Steve and his selfless service on behalf of the EPS.

Craig J. Hazen
Biola University